experienced periodic Ways and Means due to mismatch between receipt and expenditure. To enable such States to deal with the situation, there is an agreement between the States and Reserve Bank of India to provide Ways and Means support.

Since transactions between a State and the RBI is conducted as per the agreement between the two, disclosure of information on overdraft by States impinges upon the relationship between the banker and the clients (between RBI and the State Governments) such information is not published or made public by the RBI.

The Financial Management of the States is primarily the responsibility of the State Governments and it is for the respective State Governments to initiate remedial action. However, in order to alleviate the mismatch in the States' cash flows, the Government of India releases plan assistance, share in central taxes and small savings loans in advance depending on the needs and requests of the State Governments. In addition to Ways and Means support by Reserve Bank of India, Central Government also provides Ways and Means advance to States.

Pursuant to the recommendations of Eleventh Finance Commission, a scheme for the States Fiscal Reforms Facility has been drawn up. Under the Scheme, States have been encouraged to draw a monitorable fiscal reforms programme aimed at improving their financial position in the medium term.
